heart and spirit and they want to. They decided to be closer to the scripture as they can--or as they understand and that's the way it is I believe. If one understands the Bible I think it means a spiritual depthness because one being morally good is not enough. You have to be divinely good, that is in spirit is the only way that God can trust any person that he is going to be good and treating the others as he would like to be treated himself. That is the kind of association between races and people of various colors, creeds, and faiths to get along. So, be, the people need to understand that. Need to know what God wants us to be. Be neighbors to the other whether he's black, white, red, or yellow. To my notion I do not have education, but Bibically I think that God, great--God's great test before man is for us to get along. In that way it would be a great satisfaction with Him. That's what He wants us to be--brothers from races. There should be no race here, but brotherly love among us. We shouldn't hate because of color and so forth because we are all humans, flesh and blood. We are all of one blood, no matter what color a person might be. Their type of blood can be the same. That is why I believe in the Bible because we are one flesh, one blood, certainly we are. Only the skin may differ, but on the inside, we never know how a man can be. He can be good, he can be bad, but that's the way it is with humanity and we have to understand and try to help the others. Even though we might have been bad he can be helped to be good again and so on. That's what we need to do, but we don't do that. We don't do that. Seems like we dont want to help no one else, but ourselves. Every man for himself seems to be the notion with everyone. That is why we are careless we don't care about anybody else because of selfishness. God doesn't want us to be selfish because He is not. Anytime he give us rain, wind, breeze, dust, snow, frost, dew, just anything weather wise, it means for a purpose. It means for a physical well being. He feeds us through those things. And he
