(Must be an old place.)

It's an old place. It's an old building.

(It's built before the Civil War, I guess.)

Yes, it's built long before the Civil War, Aunt Lucinda was living here when the Civil War come up.

(Well. But they didn't bother it, I mean, the soldiers and bushwhackers didn't bother it when that--)

They shot--shot holes through the door.

(They shot some holes through the door.

(They shot some holes in the door. Well.)

(Interruption)

Put it down across here.

(This is a wonderful picture of that--the ruins of the old Female Seminary burned April the 10th, 18 and 87.)

Here's that--Uncle Levis', book and it's got things that these people bought, you know.

(Yeah, that's when he had the--the store here at Wauhillau.)

Wauhillau.

(And they called this also called it Caney.)

No, Wauhillau.

(Wauhillau of the Cherokee Nation.)

Yeah.

FINDS AND READS OLD RECORDS

(July 31st, 1872. Common--commenced using this memorandum book. A license for about, commenced May the 10th, 1875. Well, this is a really an old record, isn't it? Nearly a hundred years old. And all through here it's got accounts of his sales, I guess, to people.)
