(What do the words to that mean?)

Well, it's just--a boy that's went to the service just told them: "You chiefs, just sit still. I done what I wanted to." These chiefs, they always talk "chief" but they never did fight. (probably referring to modern day chiefs) So this boy told them to just sit still--"I done pay back--" or something like that.

(About five minutes of irrelevant conversation--some of it erased on the tape--concerning new book out on Arapahoes)

(Can you think of any other songs?)

WAR SONGS AND MYRTLE'S SONS IN THE SERVICE

(Myrtle sings a song made by her husband when their boy went into the service)

My old man made that song up when his boy went into the service.

(That's pretty. What kind of a song would you call that?)

Well, my boy went off--went into the service and his father used to sing songs. So one morning he got up early in the morning and I hear him sing this song. He says, "Soldier boy, you are the one that is looking over our land." That's the way it goes. That's what them words are. "You're watching our land," he said. And it's been long time ago, but I happened to think about it.

(Was that when Hannibal went in?)

No, Lewis.

(When did Lewis go in to the service?)

He went about 1942.

(Did he go overseas?)

Yeah, he got killed overseas. I think he went in--I don't know--I'll look
