he was---they say he was bad!

Jenny: Crazy one.

WITCHES TRY TO OUTDO EACH OTHER TO PROVE THEIR SUPERIORITY

And he was all the time trying to witch some of the chiefs to show his bravery--how brave he was, by witching them so that they couldn't do anything greater than what he could do. That he was a greater man. And he would witch some of them war chiefs. And I tried to neglect one, but, I don't reckon just right now I can find it. But he was one of the best that they had at that time.

(You don't remember the name of any of those chiefs that he witched?)

That's what I'm trying to find.

(I see.)

I can't find one just right now.

(--or any particular thing that he did. Any particular thing that he did?)

I know of one, but I don't know the man that done it. Old Man Yellow Wolf--he was a great chief--and there was a man in that company that he worked with that was trying to witch him. He was trying to witch him. That old Man Yellow Wolf and he found out that he was--that Yellow Wolf was one of the Owl Speakers, too. And this owl told him that this man was going to try to get the best of him. And when they had that bet that he was going to do more greater things than what he was going to do. So he find out, and in his witching, told this witch to make him cripple some way so that he won't do anything. But I forgot that man's name. I was trying to think of it. I know Old Man Yellow Wolf used to tell that story. Oh, I can't think of his name now.

(Well, did he ever witch Yellow Wolf?)
