(---everybody could?)

Yeah, you have to learn.

(Yeah.)

See, them guns didn't come in, you know.

(Yeah, yeah.)

They know how to shoot game?

(Yeah. I mean, did anybody--did anybody make arrows, you know, and then trade them with other people or did everybody make their own?)

Well, you have to make your own, you know. You got to learn.

(Yeah.)

You got to do it.

(Yeah.)

Well, they--anybody--maybe, sometime, you know, somebody make arrows or give it to his hephew or son, you know.

(Mmmm-hmmm.)

Everybody, you know, learn. All my uncles knew how to make arrows, you know.

(Yeah, yeah.)

They all knew how. See, well, he--he try to learn us, but, you know, we didn't pay no attention, you know. I could have learned how, you know.

(Yeah.)

My other uncle over here passed away some time ago, he told me. He says, "I think you can make arrows. You don't have to use no sinew."

(Yeah.)

White people got glue now.

(Yeah.) (laughter)

Yeah, you just fix your arrows and get your feather, but you have to fix
