pretty. And now the government school childrens use the blankets just like now. They good ones.

(Are they wool blankets?)

Yeah, wool. Oh, they sure nice.

(Did they have Pendleton blankets back in those days?)

Yeah. Sure. They use pillows.

(Did they have those Pendleton blankets? Beaver State blankets--did they have --?)

No, just blankets. That time it's different. Way back it's not like we have. This time it's new generation. They make other way. Way back it's different. Government learn us how to use things. At January, after Christmas, they give us clothes--blankets--and oh, they got good quilts. And shoes, too. Good shoes and stockings. Menfolks--everything they furnish for us. They learn us how to--now, we learn it now.

GAMBLING: PLAYING CARDS

(Awhile ago you said that when you were little the mean didn't do much but ride a horse and gamble. What--could you tell me about what kind of games they played. How did they--?)

Cards. Them cards. They play cards like that. I never--I never did play no cards and I never did see them. But I just-- They used to have it all over here. Lots of menfolks. Womens, they gamble. But we don't. Mama, they don't like to go that kind of stuff. She said, "It's wrong!" I'm glad she did that.

(Did your father ever gamble?)

Sure, he does.

(What games did he play?)
