

Mimante had brought to them. It is needless to say that the Kiowas were deeply disappointed-almost beyond endurance, and no small or light labor was called into requisition ~~xx~~ by Agent Haworth to prevent their exasperation assuming a character in accordance with their savage instincts, he was however favored with a degree of wisdom, and skillful management by which they were quieted, at least for the present; although a scheme was attempted as the sequel will show, which also failed in the carrying out.

After having returned to the Agency so broken down in health that I had little hope of a permanent restoration, in looking back upon the experiences of the past few weeks I feel entirely satisfied at having been resigned to go with them, fully believing that had there been no influence brought to bear upon them when they first received the intelligence of the change in the intentions of the Government relative to the release of their chiefs, a part if not all of the warriors of the tribe, and probably many others would ^{now} ~~not~~ have been engaged in hostile demonstrations among the settlements along the frontiers of Texas, Colorado, Kansas and New Mexico.

Page 193, following par. 5 last full par.

Being the only passenger, I had a quantity of prairie hay put into the bottom of the coach upon which a blanket was spread forming a bed upon which I lay most of the time on the way to Caddo, 157 miles.

Page 216, insert after first sentence in last paragraph:

This was mere pretense, they had really gone to be present at the presentation of the ~~Komanche~~ Pipe to the Cheyennes and Arapahoes which a delegation of Comanches had gone to offer them.