

The Ree scouts say that when Reno attacked the village of the Hunkpapa, a Dakota warrior charged against the soldiers, who was riding a sorrel horse with a bald face and tail tied up with a piece of red cloth. They say that the soldiers shot this Dakota off his horse and that this horse fell into the hands of the Ree scouts. I wonder if One Bull knows whose horse this was. Was this the horse of Good Bear Boy? They say that the Dakotas used whistles in fighting against Reno. Why did the Indians use whistles in war?
