

these men think so much of you?'

"At this, SB, who had in the meantime been leaning back against the wall, assumed a posture of mingled toleration and disdain.

"Your people look up to men because they are rich: because they have much land, many lodges, many squaws,' 'Yes.'

"Well, I suppose my people look up to me because I am poor. That is the difference.' In this answer was concentrated all the evasiveness natural to an Indian.

"What is your feeling toward the Americans now?' He did not even deign an answer. He touched his hip, where his knife was.

"I asked the interpreter to insist on an answer.

"Listen,' said SB, not changing his posture, but putting his right hand out upon my knee. 'I told them today what my notions were - that I did not want to go back there. Every time that I had any difficulty with them they struck me first. I want to live in peace.'

"Have you an implacable enmity to the Americans? Would you live with them in peace if they allowed you to do so; or do you think you can only obtain peace here?' 'The White Mother is good.'

"Better than the Great Father?' 'Hough!' And then, after a pause, SB continued: 'They (the Commissioners) asked me to-day to give them my horses. I bought my horses and they are mine. I bought them from men who came up the Missouri in Mackinaws. They do not belong to the Government, neither do the rifles. The rifles are also mine. I bought them; I paid for them. Why I should give them up, I do not know. I will not give them up.'

"Do you really think, do your people believe that it is wise to reject the proffers that have been made to you by the United States
