

SB. They didn't pay much attention to Red Cloud after he went on the agency.

Outside of SB's immediate relatives like his nephews and his adopted brother Gray Eagle is supposed to have been with him most of the time. They got along well until they came on the reservation. I don't know why McLaughlin appointed Gray Eagle a chief. Of course he was a good warrior and that was about the only reason for his influence with the Indians.

Lone Man (and several others) got to be appointed a farmer and police before he became a Christian.

Everybody liked Bishop Marty. What made them like him was he went up to Canada. Was a great friend of SB. Father Bernard came there after everything was in such a condition that SB wasn't regarded a good man any more. All the other missionaries liked SB. Father Craft visited SB many times. He always witnessed the dances and other tribal doings. Father Craft carried an Indian pipe and a tobacco pouch. He smoked Indian tobacco with the Indians. This pipe had been given him by someone.

Other Men Close to SB - Black Bird was one of his supporters. Village Center and all of Gray Eagle's relatives. Running Hawk, One Elk. There were some very good men among them. Black Bird was a boy with SB. He is the Black Bird who is in the story about SB breaking his arrow.
