

But he got through all right, and the happy couple departed whence they came. No one knows who they were, or from whence they came, or to where they went.

Lieut. Rosenquest, of the 4th Cavalry, has turned up among the missing, and report says he has gone to join the Turks. If so, we may soon hear of another Pasha astonishing the world by his grand sallies and brilliant victories, who has risen from obscurity to become famed as a dashing warrior, and the American people may puzzle their brain to arrive at any probably conclusion as to his identity.

The "Irish Lord" is on his pins again and able for his pork and beans, and report says that he is casting sheep's eyes Dodge Citywards; probably some lodestone or other attractive power in that direction, which may soon tell of happy souls concentrating.

The "Boys" have organized a minstrel troupe, and will give their first performance on Friday evening next. They have some excellent talent, and promise some good entertainments during the winter. The orchestra is composed of such noted and thorough musicians whose names are sufficient guarantee that some of the best of music will be rendered on each occasion. Messrs. Bobby Moore, E. Owens, J. Nagle, G.W. Miller and T. Sanford, under the chief blarneyosity of Professor Jimmy Noonan.

They have a fine hall for their entertainments, being a vacant company quarters; and affords seating capacity for an audience of from 300 to 400. The stage can be extended to 20 feet deep by 12 or 15 in width, with wings proportionately and good-sized dressing rooms in the rear.

Our social club has merged into this dramatic society, which no doubt will be more amusing to the garrison at large. More soon.
