Must Be Sentenced Before Pardoned

The Associated Press State Wire.
OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 3.—The state criminal court of appeals Saturday held that a man cannot be pardoned before he is sentenced. The decision was issued in the case of Sam White, convicted of manslaughter by a district court in Tulsa county and sentenced to seven years in the state penitentiary. White applied for a writ of habeas corpus on the authority of the pardon issued by former Governor J. C. Walton. The pardon was issued after the jury found him guilty but before he had been sentenced. The court held that White was not convicted until after the judge had passed sentence.

PRINCESS 'SISTER' OF EXPO BEAUTY

Mother of Margaret Trainer Foster Parent of 'Sunshine Rider'

Those who met and admired the Princess West Virginia, Miss Margaret Isabelle Trainer, during the International Petroleum Exposition here were surprised to learn that she is the "foster sister" of "Sunshine Rider," who was acquitted Friday in the New York courts on a grand larceny charge preferred by George Ainslie, wealthy New York art dealer. According to New York dispatches there had been much speculation as to the source of income of "Sunshine Rider." Miss Ainslie Unkalant, known also as a princess of the Cherokee nation. The mystery was cleared up when Mrs. J. E. Trainer of Salem, W. Va., mother of the state's princess at the Petroleum Exposition, testified that she had furnished "Sunshine Rider" with spending money. Mrs. Trainer testified in New York that she was proud to be known as the "foster mother" of Sunshine

Rider and that she had furnished an apartment in New York for the Cherokee princess and Miss Trainer, the Princess West Virginia. She also testified that she had given "Sunshine Rider" between $4,000 and $5,000 for spending money. Mrs. Trainer testified that she first met the accused woman when she and Miss Trainer were studying music together at a conservatory. That was in 1915. "I love her and was interested in her career," Mrs. Trainer testified in the New York trial of her foster daughter, in explaining why she had given the girl so much spending money. When the time came at the exposition to choose Queen Petrolia the contest narrowed down to Miss Trainer, Princess West Virginia and Miss Marcella Romania Trees, Princess Kansas, the latter finally winning after an extra judge had been secured. Miss Trainer made a host of friends here by her charm and graciousness of manner. NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Princess Natalie Unkalant of Muskogee, victorious in a vivid four-day court battle which ended in her acquittal on a charge of grand larceny brought by Mrs. Lucie Benedict appeared Saturday to harbor no ill feeling against those who had accused her. She only said she pitied "poor Mr. Ainslie"—George H. Ainslie, Fifth avenue art dealer, father of

AGED INDIAN INJURED WHEN MULES RUN AWAY

(Special News Service)
JAY, Okla., Dec. 1.—Moses Ridge, Indian Baptist minister, said to be past the century mark and the oldest Cherokee in his tribe, was injured Thursday when a mule team he was driving ran away with him. His arm was severely bruised. Ridge has been removed to the Vinita hospital where he is recovering. Ridge holds the record of outliving more Cherokees in the bonds of matrimony than any other minister in Oklahoma. Although he is around the century mark, he is hale and hearty and is frequently seen driving a span of mules through the country. He lives about 19 miles west of here on Moss Ridge prairie, which was named for him in an early day.

Spavinaw—The Modern Miracle

On a Certain Day, Ancient of the Aztecs, Moses smote the rock and pure water flowed forth. And today, thousands are reading about the wonder wrought by the modern Moses—the engineer—how he has harnessed the waters and brought forth a flood of mountain purity to a magnificent city "athirst in the desert"—as it were. Water—Pure, cooling water, without which no city can hope to become great—is ours and tomorrow we celebrate. Tomorrow the barrier is removed and Tulsa, with the power of visualization, see a wondrous city whose hum of industry awakes into a mighty chorus of prosperity—a New Tulsa. Wonderful as has been the growth of this magnificent city—growing out here on the plains of opportunity—its real growth and real greatness have just begun. Vigor and vim, aggressiveness and progressiveness, loyalty and civic pride, it has always had and now—its goblet filled, not with wine but with water. Opportunity comes to dwell in "the best old town in all the nation!"

Mrs. Benedict, and reputed suffer for the princess' affections. Ainslie and his daughter were not as willing to let the court decision end the case. They announced their intention of asking District Attorney Eanton to proceed against the princess before the grand jury asking an indictment for theft.
