SUBJECT: NATIVE AMERICAN PROGRAM

I am pleased to announce that John Sirois has accepted the position of Acting Director of the Native American Program, effective July 11. A 1991 graduate of Dartmouth, John has served as Assistant Director of Admissions at Dartmouth since August 1993. In that position, he has been responsible for the recruitment and enrollment of Native American Students as well as other applicants in his region.

Prior to his assignment with Admissions, John worked as Indian Education Coordinator for the Omak, Okanogan (Washington) School District, as coordinator of tutorial services in the Omak High School, as a grant reviewer for the Department of Indian Education (Washington, DC), and as an instructor at Wenatchee Valley College - Omak Campus.

As a student at Dartmouth, John served as vice president of Native Americans at Dartmouth, played junior varsity basketball, volunteered through the Tucker Foundation with Listen, and majored in history with a certificate in Native American Studies.

Please join me in welcoming John to his new responsibilities and position at Dartmouth, which he will hold during the course of a search for a permanent director of the Program. John brings to his new assignment experience in and commitment to Native American education, a great deal of familiarity with the College and the Native American Program in particular, and the benefit of his perspective from admissions. I am very pleased he is joining the Dean of the College staff.
