Re: Request for Permission to Reprint

To Whom It May Concern:

I am preparing a work tentatively entitled Native American Voices to be published by Millbrook Publishers during 1994. This anthology is intended for young adult readers and is an effort to bring to the classroom the voices of Native people - people of the past and people of the present. The work will include oratory, poetry, songs and ceremonies, biographies, stories (legends, myths) and fiction. The purpose of this effort is not to teach about particular genres of literature, historical periods, or tribal groups, but, again, to bring to teachers and young people of this country the richness of the oral traditions of American Indians and the voices of contemporary Indian people.

May I have your permission to include the attached essay by Wilma Mankiller in Native Peoples, 4 (2). (Winter, 1991):

Citation will read Mankiller, W., Winter, 1991, p. 5.

in my book and in future revisions and editions thereof, including nonexclusive world rights in all languages?

These rights will in no way restrict republication of your material in any form by you or by others authorized by you. Should you not control these rights in their entirety, would you please let me know to whom else I may write?

Unless you indicate otherwise, I will use the following bibliographic reference:

Mankiller, W. Guest Essay. Native Peoples, 4 (2) (Winter, 1991). Phoenix, AZ: Media Concepts Group.

I would greatly appreciate your consent to this request. Please indicate your agreement by signing the release form at the bottom of the page and returning this form to me at the address given below. A duplicate is enclosed for your files. Thank you for your prompt reply.

Sincerely,

Karen Harvey
