Dear Ms. Mankiller,

I am writing to invite you to participate in what promises to be the most important gathering of politically active women to take place during 1993. Changing the Face of American Politics will be the 11th biennial national convention of the National Women's Political Caucus, and will be held July 8th-11th, at the Biltmore Hotel in downtown Los Angeles, California.

Specifically, we hope you will attend our Reception Honoring Women of Color in Politics on July 9th. This gala celebration of the diversity of the women's political movement, will recognize the unique challenges, and applaud the political achievements, of women of color.

This convention will be a meaningful opportunity for hundreds of women who are actively involved in public policy and politics at all levels to share important ideas and develop strategies for increased influence in the public arena. Changing the Face of American Politics will focus on planning for continued change, and will emphasize greater outreach, recruitment and training of women for elected offices and appointments at all levels.

We are committed to making this the best, most memorable NWPC convention ever, and we would like you to be a part of it. Unfortunately, we will not be able to cover your expenses because of the limited budget with which we are working. Please do not hesitate to contact me, or Convention Coordinator Elizabeth Arledge, should you need more information. I look forward to seeing you at the convention.

Sincerely,

Harriett Woods
President
