

If all young people in our world could have the opportunity to be in schools where Reverence, Responsibility and Right Action are taught, where individual students are honored, where service to the community is obligatory, and whole communities are supportive, then the many 'Pollys' of our world would be given a greater chance for a future.

Whatever it takes to ingrain Reverence, Responsibility, and Right Action in the minds and hearts of our youth is what we have to give. The need is immeasurable. We must move beyond all our attachments to ideas of styles and systems of educating. We must move to the very heart of necessity.

I wish you a great and joyous journey.

Sincerely,

Francesca Lauria
Coordinator Lauria Living School
Co-Director Living School Association, Inc.

PS: A recent quote passed on to me by my mother: "A wise man said: 'All that is necessary for times of evil is for enough good men to do nothing.'"