

(Well that's good.)

He was a council, a senator. He worked with the Dawer Commission when they enrolled--back in 1902. That's where Charley Cox's--now that's Frank Cox's father used to rent a store there.

(Yeah.)

Course the roads have changed. You wouldn't hardly know.

(Oh, yeah, everything has changed now. And they had a high sheriff down there too, didn't they?)

Oh, yeah.

(I don't know who it was, but I read about it one time.)

MANY SHOOTING SCRAPES IN EARLY DAYS -ZEKE PROCTOR

This district was where it was they all had big shooting scrape.

(Well, big shooting scrap.)

Yeah. 'Course that at the Whitmire School.

(Yeah.)

The old building was on the old Charles Tanner place. Some of the Whitemire's owned it way back them days.

(Yeah.)

And Wrights. Wrights, the Whitmires all kin and intermarried.

(Yeah. Well, was that when the oh, Becks and the Proctors, and Kesterson all got into a fight?)

Hilderbrand.

(Hilderbrand. Well, some folks got hurt there, didn't they?)

Four or five got killed there. There's even several laws got killed there.

(Well, my goodness.)

That was before my time.

(Yeah. What was they fighting over, Mr. Lacie?)

I don't know. Old man Proctor was officer of the law. I forgot that other
