

You've read about that.

(Yeah, I've read about it.)

We used to go from here to--catch a mail hack to Cincinnati and go to (word not clear) and go to Fort Smith. That was before this here Kansas City Southern was built. No, the only grist mill was up at Cincinnati.

(Well. You went a long ways from here, didn't you?)

Yeah. We (words not clear) Now they would come over here to (word not clear) We was about three miles to the Arkansas line. They lived there east of Westville. They (words not clear) They went plumb over to that school.

(Where was that Alberty Prairie?)

Westville--right there where Westville is. South and east of Westville on the Arkansas line. Yeah, this here (word not clear)

(Lot of Indians just took land allotment up in that country.)

Yeah.

(Long time ago.)

Yeah. Yeah (words not clear) sixteen years.

(Yes sir, they all have to pass away sometime.)

Yeah, I know lots of herbs, myself.

(Yeah, there's lots of Indian medicine in here. I seen some if all along.)

I used to have a herb book. I don't know. I let it get away from me.

Oh, it was a book that big.

(Well. Book called Indian Medicine.)

Yeah.

(Well, that was certainly --)

(Sentence not clear) All back in here.

(Yeah.)

(Words not clear) country grewed up since I lived here.

(Yeah, people had big orchards long time ago.)

We had three. Daddy had--put out three orchards. (End of Interview)
