

CHURCHES

(Yeah. Did you have--when you folks first came, did you have a church here then too?)

Well, they used to have church in the school house.

(Oh, I see.)

They used it for everything.

(Uh-hum.)

Voting and church. Yeah, they've always been church there. We've got two churches now. Methodist over here, south of us. And the Baptist.

(Uh-hum.)

But there wasn't much church services as there is now. Everybody lived out in the woods, you know, things like that.

CEMETERIES

(Are there any old cemeteries around? This one on the hill---)

Yeah, right up here.

(Is that your old---?)

Yeah, that's the oldest one here. It was there when I came. It was there.

It's getting pretty full now.

(Yes, sir. Does it go by the name of Bunch Cemetery?)

Bunch Cemetery, uh-hum, yeah. Me and the Methodist preacher over here, we volunteered our services to (words not clear). You know how these cemeteries are. About twenty years ago, (word not clear) he was coming in. He was pretty active (words not clear) Methodist. And he's in a rest home, I think now at Tulsa.

(Well.)

And T.W. (word not clear). He came in one morning, and he asked for twenty dollars for, you know, foreign service. I give it to him. I said, "I hate
