

Mr. Clement: Or through the side wall or something.

(Participant, man:) Which means a revision of the foundation...

Mr. Clement: Right.

(participant, man:) And we could build it out there say three or four foot from the house out there..we could just..

Mr. Clement: I think the best way for you to handle that Sadie, is I'll give you a price and you just tell 'em that if they want a cellar that we'll build them a cellar after we finish the project. For X number of dollars. That'll be simple. If they want it fine, if they don't why we can do that over and above outside this contract can't we?

Sadie: Oh, goodness, you're good at pullin' them strings on me.

(Participant, man:) I'd say it'd be simple with a cash deal.

Mr. Clement: Right, but on the land that's leased to the housing authority, I don't know. If the participant want...

(Participant, man:) Well, with a cash deal I would say it'd probably it'd be simpler.

Mr. Clement: It probably would.

(Participant, man:) But with ah with ah probably a contract and payment deal why I don't..I don't think we should.

Mr. Clement: You might check with legal and see for sure.

(Participant, man:) But I'm sure that you couldn't do it on a..a contract deal.

(Mr. 2:) Well, we have in the past of my year your reference is one percent correct, I think, but really we'd not like to have storm cellars in the contract at all. Now if you want to do them, I think his proposal of doing it over and above, forget about it. It's not connected with this program in any way. You're much better off now that way if the individual wanted to build his own storm cellar and he could do it or he could pay him so many x number
