

Uh-hum.

(Yeah. That's what I heard, uh-huh.)

The oldest man that lived there--the graveyard got started from Reece. His name was Charley Reece.

(Yeah.)

And there's some more Reeces over around Flint--Taylor School house.

(Uh-huh.)

There's a big cemetery there.

(Hum.)

They've taken pretty good care of it too. I used to go to school there when we lived at what we call (word not clear).

(They had an old water mill.)

Uh-huh.

(Well. Was that on Barren Fork?)

No. That's called Tyner's Creek.

(On Tyner's Creek, uh-huh, back there where Proctor is now, some place.)

Uh-huh.

(Uh-huh. An old water mill.)

Yeah.

(Well.)

Uh-hum, Reece used to live right there at that water mill, Joe Reece.

(Yeah.)

There's just one or two about three there still living.

(You all went to Taylor school.)

Uh-huh. Yeah. (static) west of Siloam they call Beck's Mill.

(Beck's Mill.)

They used to call it that.
