

(Oh)

Yeah, 'bout that big. Next morning my aunt went out there to feed the dog there he come out and eat. (Laughter)

(He did?)

Huh?

(He did?)

Yeah, he wasn't even swelled.

Maggie: Swelling went down.

(In one time! And you put tobacco on it?)

Yeah, now that's what I had to use.

(But now you do have to say something, don't you?)

Yeah, you--(not clear).

(Uh-huh.)

Well, I doctored lot of white--quite a few white people around. It takes practice same as-- Last time I guess I doctored that Jesse Dunham. (not clear) when they lived up on--

Maggie: You get the lettuce, you know, and put a lettuce on it--under that lettuce isn't it, on their hand.

One of them old copperheads, what it was.

(Grandma was bit by a copperhead.)

You know, her arm was swelled big wasn't it?

Maggie: Yeah, they come over here in the middle of the night, didn't they?

(You doctored here, huh?)

Maggie: Uh-huh.

Three time, too.

(Is she all right. She's all right.)

Maggie: Yeah.
