

Eat off a tarpaulin in the yard. And help plant their corn and beans and everything that they had to put out. No town work, just about free gratis, you know. And when we'd leave lot of times we'd go in the evening, you know. Those days it didn't make any difference about what time you arrived to their home. She'd always take a little ashes and put on her forehead. She said to keep away the animals or varmints or whatever you might call it. Because then maybe it'd be dark when we'd get there.

(What was your grandmother's name?)

Widow Crawfish. She went by the name of Widow Crawfish. But her name was Bessie. But that's what they all called her.

(What did everyone call her?)

Widown Crawfish.

PROCEDURE IN SELECTING NAMES FOR CHILDREN

(Did your tribe, how did they get their English name?)

Their English name?

(Uh-hum)

Well, I don't know.

(Probably when they went to school, maybe.)

I imagine so. I got my name by Baptism. I was baptised in the church. I was named after people who were my sponsors which was Alice Salyer.

(Uh--sponsor, these people sponsored you into the church?)

Uh--no, like when you're baptised they stand up for you. They called your god parents. And Bob's grandfather was my Indian name giver. I guess you'd call it wouldn't you, Bob?

(He chose your Indian--)

Give me my Indian name. Just uh--(speaks Indian name)

Say it louder.)

Sa-da-tuh(?)
