

Was it you got a sliver in your foot? In your hand? (Man's voice.)

No, Rosie swallowed two pins.

Oh. (Laughter) (Man's voice.)

We had to take her home. We had to take her home. (Laughter)

Used to tell me, why that's been long ago, you know it.

(Well, what happened?)

Well, my sister was over to the Mission, I was going to school, Quapaw Mission. And she swallowed a couple of pins.

(Straight pins?)

Yes. And we had to take her then to Miami. My folks run a hotel there. We took her to Miami.

(What happened to her then?)

Well, they doctored her I guess. Swallowed a safety pin, they didn't do nothing. Took her home. (Laughter) Well she swallowed a straight pin though. They sent her home anyway. I was at the Quapaw Mission a long time. My mother was a matron at Wyandotte.

(When you went to school there?)

I didn't go to school in Wyandotte. I went to -- . She went to school in Chilocco. And she was a matron down here at Seneca. Addie said, "I guess she wanted to set up all the things she couldn't set up here." Yeah, she worked at Wyandotte when they send us off. You know Dagnett, Charles Dagnett.

Man's voice: Yes

They called him Dash.
