

"That's too bad."

So I'm hoping that, I think it's a week from Friday or two weeks from Friday that we take her to a clinic in Fort Smith and they'll tell us something.

"Now will the government pay for that?"

No, I had insurance, you see, and since I'm paying for the insurance, I said what's the use of not using it. Let the insurance pay for it. I said (not clear) I'll be better off by it.

"Do many of the other Indians have Health insurance?"

Well, biggest part of them do, I think. Also I think that's the best thing any employee can have. It's not very much. If you had that money, you're going to spend it for something else.

"That's right."

I think the biggest part of them do but I rather go right direct to a specialist because here they're really not set up, you know, for that.

"Well, I hope your daughter will get over it real quick. But I believe they have things for that."

Yes, this doctor in Fort Smith said this is something that is going to take time but she'll get over it.

"Yes, sometimes it does take time to clear up something. How old is she?"

She's nineteen.
