(Yeah.)

When he went to the army, his daddy wanted him to build him a home on that. Well, there's a sixty acre piece and forty acre piece in (inaudible) back over in the cerner. And a hundred acres of land is what we had bought. And he was always at home; and he was just a good boy.

(Now, was he born up in Porter or did you move back?)

New he was bern ever in that house.

(Oh, you had already moved back,)

Uh-huh. He was just sitting alone, just a little eld baby. He was born in Nevember. And he was bern in Nevember, and the next August why we meved up here. It was all the same place together. But his brether lived there but he meved to Perter; so we meved ever there. But Pa was buying our house.

PRODUCTS OF THE FARM

(And_new, on your farm here, you made your living right off the land?)
Yes.

(What all did you raise?)

Well, for several years he raised wheat and oats, and then he get into the cetten business. And that cetten business it's just real--did you ever chep cetten?

(I never chepped it. I've seen it grewing in fields; that's about the extent.)

I just leve to chep or pick either.

(De you?)

Uh-huh. Put on a pair of kid gleves, just fits real good and just keep on a going. And he had it as high, just about like-this.

RECALLS FARM WHERE HOUSES ARE NOW BUILT

The--well, we call it the ten acre piece. You wouldn't understand what we mean new. But Miss Redgers, lives in that big house ever there, you
