

(Did you tell me that you think maybe one your nephews married Bell Starr's oldest daughter?)

I believe it was the oldest daughter. Now I wouldn't be positive about that. But I know he married into the Starr family.

(Did you ever meet her or know of anything about her?)

I've seen her but I never knowed very much about her.

(I've heard so many different stories about her.)

Grandpa Timmons, your grandfather, he got horses to work, to break for, work and break them you know and live right by them.

(That was my great-grandpa wasn't it? No my grandfather it is, wouldn't it? Be my grandfather.)

Yeah. Your grandfather. And he was the best neighbors you ever had. No better than they were.

(Starr family?)

Yeah. And--that young Starr he used to come by there and he'd go down, Lookout was a great friend to him. He used to stay there awhile and John Lookout would tell me about it. He's buried up here.

(Who is?)

Henry Starr.

(Oh, he is.)

Buried up here in Dewey.

(Up here in Dewey?)

In Dewey.

(I didn't know that.)

Buried up in Dewey.
