BRIEF INTRODUCTION

(We're just visiting about some of the things that Mrs. Whitehorn remembers or was told that happened to some of the Caddos in Louisiana and then we'll probably talk about some dances and different things. This is June 26, 1969 in Norman. Mrs. Lilly Hoag--How do you pronounce Hoag? Hoag is it. Hoag Whitehorn. Yeah, your daughter, Amelia Hoag. Her great-grandfather was Jose Maria. So, we're just going--I'm going to ask her about something she wanted to talk about happened down in Louisiana we found out last night. Oh, I know what I wanted to ask you. Tell me what you told me about the turkey dances, if you want to. Anywhere you want to start.)

MRS. WHITEHORN TELLS OF A TRIP TO LOUISIANA WITH A GROUP OF CADDOS

(Mr. Whitehorn) Tell about the trip you made in Louisiana.

(Yeah, ok.)

(Mrs. Whitehorn) Well, there was a delegation that went down there. There was about 25 of us and I was one of the chosen ones to go.

(So, you was delegate from the Caddo tribe?)

Yes. Some from Binger and Anadarko, Fort Cobb. We had our princess with us. They elected a girl, lady. Her name was--she was-- her name was Josephine (last name not clear) and she went as a princess for that trip. And she had on her buckskin dress and she bought (words not clear). And we had our chief, at that time was Charley Adams and he went along with us. They had two buses from Dallas, Texas. And we left that morning from Anadarko and got to Shreveport that
