

(Yeah, you were on the west side.)

But they'd go to Vinita in the wagon, you know. And we had some neighbors that lived there by us and they used to join forces and take time about taking their wagons, you know--to town. And it was just a two days trip. And sometimes in the spring time or early fall they'd get water bound, you know.

(Well.)

Cabin Creek would get up in there. They just have to stay all night out there some place. 'Cause there weren't any bridges or anything, you know. And they had real muddy roads to travel.

CONCERNING CHEROKEE FEMALE SEMINARY

(Sentence not clear.)

Uniforms you know, caps and aprons.

(Yes.)

And I had my picture at my mother's place. Of course I was still unmarried. And you know, that picture disappeared and I never did know where it went.

(No, those pictures of the old Cherokee Seminaries, I treasure them.)

Uh-hum. Uh-hum.

('Cause in my years now, I got to know so many of those people before a lot of them passed away. And I cherish their memory and I enjoyed knowing them so much.)

I've got a book in there now that was prepared at the Seminary, 1905. And it was a yearbook. And I've got it in there now if you'd care to see it.

(Well, I--)

Pictures of the early teachers at the Seminary, you know. And here's a list of graduates up there until 1905. It's quite interesting to read them. I kept intending to give that book to Northeastern Museum.

(Uh-huh. That would be a good place, all right.)
