

That's right. It been plowed down through there.

(Yeah)

It circles around, but some of the rocks is still there. Don't think very many.

RAISED GARDENS - GRITTED BREAD

(Yeah. Well. People don't raise gardens like they used to, do they?)

No sir. I don't see, but one good plowed garden and that's this garden right down here.

(Well)

You see that one right there by the road.

(Yeah)

He's got son, you know. He's got children comes in and out there.

(Yeah)

(Sentence not clear)

(Well)

Joint break easy.

(Uh-huh. Do the Indians raise that Indian corn, colored corn like they used to?)

No, they don't.

(They just quit raising it down here. I like that.)

Yeah it was a good corn.

(It sure was. Easy to raise. Yeah. Konutchai cornbread.)

We had an old grit to grit corn, you know.

(Yeah, gritted bread.)

Gritted bread.

(Now that's good stuff. Yeah, its a favorite Indian dish.)

Yes gritted lots of it.

(Is there an Indian that still makes that gritted bread and konutchai Indian hominy?)
