

(Well you got pretty good education up there.)

Pretty fair, yeah. I'm proud of it, too.

(Yes sir. You got lot to be proud of. Well, this Little Rock community was it--all one time-- all Indians here, I guess.)

Yeah, there was all Indians in 1909. 1912 it was all Indians wasn't no white man at all.

(Well.)

Only whiteman was that Ed Rose that's where they had a little store.

(Yeah)

And had a doctor there his name is Dr. Shotts, you know.

(Well, Dr. Shotts.)

Lot of these Indians they used him anyway.

(Yeah. 'Course the Indians they like their own doctors, too.)

Yeah, they had one. They had two or three of 'em around here.

(Yeah)

But they all gone now.

(Oh yeah, all of 'em gone. Saugee Sanders, who was he? Do you remember him?

Saugee Sanders.)

Who? Yeah, he lived right back over the ridge right here.

(Yeah.)

That long stone.

(Yeah)

Yeah.

(I've heard about him.)

He was our president, American Indian president.

(Well)

Way back in early days.

(O Yeah there was lots of 'em. Who were some of the other old time Indians
