

Janana and Miss Edmondson.

(Yes ma'am.)

Did you know the Edmondsons?

(Yes, un-huh.)

Jerry and Beulah.

(Yes.)

And Goney.

(Goney.)

Goney was in Maysville I think, Maysville.

Unidentified Voice: They--way up there in the house--her last name was Hasy, wasn't it? He was Creek and she was a white woman.

(Well.)

Unidentified Voice: Oh, them was the best people. They moved to Jenks and they sold their place and moved to Jenks.

And we've been bothered. We haven't been hearing from them, you know. They used to come out and visit us, you know.

Unidentified Voice: Every time they come to Tahlequah they'd just drive up here to see us, how we're doing.

(That was sure nice of them.)

Yeah, and she had a great big old patch of blackberries, didn't she? And she'd drive out here and pick up up and pick all the blackberries we could pick and bring us home and she'd give us hominy. She called it sofky, didn't she?

(Sofky, well.)

Yeah, she's sure crazy about that. They had one little girl, didn't they?

Unidentified Voice: Yes and later, five girls. Three girls and three boys.

Mr. Gourd: She died up there close to Locust Grove. And she was buried up there.
