

Yes, they had entertainments there at the Female Seminary and they'd invite the boys when they did have entertainments. They'd invite the boys, go out and enjoy the evening with them. They didn't have them too often but anyway, always glad to go out there you know.

(What did you do when you would go over there?)

Just--well they didn't have really--didn't have any games out there; just visited, you know, about all they did. A lot of times they'd have refreshments. They'd do that.

(Were they pretty well chaperoned?)

Yeah, yeah.

ACTIVITIES IN TOWN ON SATURDAY'S:

(What did you do when you came to town on Saturday? What did the boys do downtown?)

Oh, just fooled around you know, go to the show. We'd go to the show there in town and just visit round town. They didn't have much to do anyway. And at night, when we'd go to the Seminary and on our way home, they had policeman there to kinda check on us in there always. We went through town, lots of times a policeman would holler at us, "Where you woolies going?"

(Woolies?)

Yeah, they'd call us woolies. "Where you woolied going?" We'd tell him we were going back to school. I well remember some of the officers.

(Were they pretty nice to you? I mean they didnt--)

Oh, they were really nice to us, very nice.

(These town policeman, city policeman?)

City policeman. Oh, I don't know--I never did know anybody being put in jail for anything. Cause they had--the boys always acted like they should act. You know, going through town.

(They feel like they had an opportunity there to go to school. They didn't feel like they had to did they?)

No, they really wanted to go to school there. But at the beginning of the term, a lot of the boys that didn't like it, they'd quit and go home. Very few of them
