

north. Yeah. This road used to run right on through here. The place we trying to get is two miles north. I believe the next line is open, there is a house setting up the road. This is about the line. It goes toward that house anyway.

ANIMALS - DEER AND COYOTES - FORMER HOME

--they sure don't. Look at there will you. Actually right through this country down here--down southeast of town--down the Little Washita, there is two deer down there. But up in here, there wasn't hardly anything but coyotes.

(Yeah.)

And jack rabbits and other small varments. Of course those coyotes--you couldn't go to sleep when I was a kid. Those boyotes coming up pretty close howling you know. They just--I don't guess they didn't come within 300 yards of where there was a tent or anything. Way down in those tents, those coyotes begin howling soon as it got dark. When it gets dark, you heard those stories.

(Interruption)

(Mr. Cribbs is telling a story about a man trying to give directions.) How do you get to the post office? Well, you go down this way and turn a block and back that way. And said, "No, can't do that--and go this way," and he said "Now there is no way to get to the post office from here." He couldn't explain how to get there. And he said "There is no way to get to the post office." Well here we are. That's kinda like this place is. There is no way to get there. Along this section line--this supposed to be a mile--we come that far?

(Yeah, that's a section line.)

This is it then. The line we supposed to be on, sure.

(I guess she's right I don't know. She know the place you were looking for.)

Yeah. She knew where this fireplace was. Two miles southwest and 2 miles south of Cyril. Yeah. (Discuss gasoline in automobile.)
