

COMMENTS ABOUT VINE DELORIA

(You know Vine Deloria, he was the area director before him. He was pretty good, too course I think he resigned and he wants to go back to college and get his degree in law.)

Oh yeah.

(John was really doing a fine job.)

Yeah, that's good.

(Irrelavent conversation.)

(He usually comes down to the fair doesn't he?)

(Uh-huh)

Woman's voice: (For a day or so.)

Does he? Do you know this fellow Deloria? Have you met him? He's just written a book.

(He has?)

Yeah, which I haven't seen but I've--in fact it may not be published yet, it may not have been released yet, but if not it is just about to be.

I'm going to review it for one of--for some journal or other. It's called Custer Died for Your Sins. I think McMillian publishes it.

Woman's voice: (Well, so that is what he has been doing.)

(I think he resides in Denver. I will have to read that book.)

I might be, it would be interesting, see what they say.

(Conversation.)

(Mr. Vine Deloria was the Executive Director when we had our convention in Oklahoma City, when was that, about three years ago, wasn't it? -- Yes -- We were on a committee up there to help the convention.)

He is Sioux, isn't he?

(Yes.)

Yeah.
