

they have the largest tribe. And the largest--and the most illiterate people, I guess you would say. Not really illiterate. But uneducated people. They also have the most educated of any tribe. Because of there being so many. This is one reason that they have--

(You mean education according to white people's standards, or do you mean educated according to Navaho standards?)

Educated according to white people's standards and uneducated according to the Indian standards. Because of the Indian standard is where they are. Placed on the top of the drop-out list. And because of the--

SIDE B

BI-LINGUAL TEACHING OF LANGUAGES FOR SCHOOLS

(I remember that one school there in--I think it's in Window Rock.)

Called Ship Rock.

(Window Rock?)

Maybe Window Rock.

(Arizona, where the lessons are taught in Navaho and English is taught as a foreign language. As a second language, I should say. Well, what do you think about that?)

Well, I'd like to see that occur in every community. In every tribe. That's something that is going to happen among the Cherokees now. They're going to teach the grade school students Cherokee as well as the English language. Teach 'em in Cherokee and also the English. That way. This is why I feel mostly about the heritage. I feel very--I think more of the heritage than I do of an education. To stress more about people being Indian. That they should recognize the fact that they are Indians. And should remain the fact that they are Indians. And maintain their heritage and a little bit of their speaking language. This is something that I think would be beneficial not only to the Indians but to the white people that is just now becoming more of an interest in the Indian and the Indian heritage
