

(You mean a lot of them just join that club just so they can tell that they belong to a club?)

They don't even join it. They don't even come to meetings at all. You come there yourself. How many Creeks and Cherokees do you find? They're Plains Indians. They're Kiowas, Poncas, Pawnees, Apaches, Osages.

Comanches. There's a lot, but they're not Five Civilized Tribes. Maybe you want the Five Civilized Tribes to get some form of direction. To have these Indian history. Well, maybe it's happening in other Oklahoma colleges. Well, they're still not Five Civilized Tribes on other college campuses.

The Plains Indians who are doing all this. Not the Five Civilized Tribes. They're content with what they've got now. And most of them are white people who are content with what they've got right now.

(In other words, you mean they're mixed so much. The white people--)

They're mixed so much with the white society that they have no inclination towards the Indian thinking, Indian views, Indian ways.

(And they're not proud of their Indian heritage. They could care less.)

Well, as an example, how many of these Indian grants students from Muskogee know how to stomp dance? Know how to go to pow wows. Know how to get along with pow wow. They go to pow wows. They go to stomp dances, they're lost. Because they've never been to an Indian stomp dance. They've never been to a pow wow. You see what I'm trying to say? Maybe they've never been Indian inclined. They've been going to teen hops. They've been going to night clubs. They've never had anything Indian.

(Even though you're really sort of acculturated, I mean what white people would say. You know they call that acculturated. Meaning like you can mix with white people and you can mix with Indians, too. You still go to the pow wows and you still go to the Forty-Niners and you still go to the stomp dances.)
