

Yes, she was a school teacher and she was a Missionary woman.

(Her husband was a Presbyterian Minister.)

Yes, and she was too.

(What was her husband's first name?)

I think she called him Jeremiah.

(Reverend Jeremiah Dymond. Now did you live part of the time at Ramsey Mission, or near there?)

I visited for they were kin, Mrs. Dymond and Mrs. Ramsey were kin.

(And then later, you said Mrs. Dymond had--and Mr. and Mrs. Dymond had a daughter who taught at the mission at Emahaka.

Minnie Dymond.

(Minnie Dymond.)

She was not married. She was just a real missionary teacher.

(Well, after you left the Dymond's then at age 13, you went back to make your--who did you make your home with?)

Mr. Thomas Little and his family.

(Mr. Thomas who?)

Little.

WENT TO EMAHAKA MISSION BOARDING SCHOOL

(Little. Then do you want to talk about your life then--was that when you started to Emahaka?)

Yes. I went to Emahaka. I went there bout' five or six years and then I guess I had enough education, so I quit.

(Tell us--who were some of the people you knew at Emahaka Mission.)

They're pretty near all dead. One of them that I knowed there, was John Brown and his children all went to school there. And the late Mrs. Brown went there. You remember Sarah?
