

be like the white people as Indians. We you can't have their color. You might try to act like them but we're not like them. We're just plain Indians. And when you try to be like somebody and not be yourself that ruins it. And it makes you have enemies. But in order not be that I think the Indian people should try to help their own tribe. No their own tribe but the Indian next Indian. And instead of feuding with these others everything would be just fine. I'm not against the white man's way. There's good in white people and there's good in every human made today there's some good. But there's only one thing since I was brought in a Christian home; Let the good the holy spirit guide you from wrong and you can be a good man or woman child or a person. I was taught that way to love the rich and poor. I was taught ot to make fun of people. And I try to live like that. I'm a human nature. I'm not nothing different from no one else. As I was interviewing these Indians some of them like it, and some of them are afraid. They're afraid if they say anything about the white people they might take their welfare checks away from them. They just don't understand. I try to explain to them. And I don't try to make them against the white people. When I talk to interview some of these Indians they get off the subject and just want to talk to me. You know just like asking about somebody and this and that. Then we have to get back on the subject.

INDIANS IN OLD DAYS

And there are some, there's most of the Indians say that long time ago back in the days when they used to live were better days than today. Because everybody seemed like loved one another. And they didn't live in luxuries. Where they lived in homes they didn't have rug on the floor. I remember my aunt had her floors scrubbed clean. And the yard they didn't have lawn mowers to cut the grass. They took a broom and swept the yard around the
