

(Yeah, that was the only time I've ever seen Jim Thorpe was up there at Haskell.)

Yeah. But Jim Thorpe he left up there, didn't he? Went back east.

(Uh-huh. Boy, there was an athlete the world will remember.)

Remember Don Eagle?

(Yeah, Don Eagle; I remember him. Nice looking fellow when he was young.

'Course that's been forty years ago, now since -- .)

Don Eagle he built an Indian village near Philadelphia.

(Well.)

Making good.

(What tribe was he from? Do you remember?)

I think he was Sioux.

(Yeah, I guess that's right.)

Yeah.

TALKS ABOUT EARLY INDIAN SETTLEMENTS, PEOPLE ETC.

(Where the Peorias settled in this country, Tom?)

Little old village over here kinda north and west of Seneca. That was where the Peoria reservation was located. Peorias had a reservation south of here. The line was just about half way between Quapaw and the Shawnee store.

(Yeah.)

That was the beginning of the reservation that run east of Peoria. And just, I imagine, about two or three miles east of Peoria had ended.

(Are any of the Peorias still living, you say, over in there?)

Oh, yeah. Yes.

(Who would be some of them? Some of the older ones particularly.)

Well, I wouldn't know the older ones. Guy Froman was an older one. There's a few of the older ones living.

(There's a fellow by the name of Hoffman lives in east of Quapaw, is he Seneca?)
