

(Sometimes they'd walk. About how many miles from Stilwell was it?)

Oh, I don't know. Let's see. About how far is that? About 15 miles.

(About 15. And sometimes they'd walk, huh? Would they leave--probably leave early in the morning, wouldn't they? And then come back later that afternoon?)

Might. Sometimes, I guess.

(Well, now did all of your family, --where was your mother and daddy from? Do you know what part of Oklahoma they were from?)

In there.

(Right around in Stilwell? They met and married there. Did you all ever raise any of your own tobacco when you were growing up as a kid?)

My daddy did.

(Did he fix his own? I mean twist it?)

Like this, yes.

(Did your mother chew too?)

I guess.

(Most of the time back then they made their own tobacco instead of buying it store bought, didn't they?)

Yeah.

(End of Side A)

SIDE B

EARLY MEDICINAL USES

(Mrs. Carey, I was going to ask you--I know way back then doctors were far and few between. The Indian people usually had to come up with their own cures. And they used a lot of herbs back then, didn't they? And I was going to ask you if perhaps you know some of the remedies in the herbs and the roots and the berries and the things