

Chapman and Walters took it over and fortunate they just handed it down from one generation to the other, see, the girl that--McFarland girl--she-- married a man by the name of Ingersoll. And he was--a wealthy man anyway, a millionaire. Well--he-- was kin to that Ingersoll element that made the Ingersoll watches. Well, they didn't seem to click, but they had a kid or two, you see. And he went out and, well they quit. And then she married another fellow, and of course, that didn't last but the little Ingersoll boy, is operating the ranch now. Web Ingersoll. And he's a-- seems like mighty fine boy.

CHAPMAN RANCH - FAMILY

(Yeah, that's one of the biggest ranches in the country, I guess.)

Yes them Chapman and Walters see, they--that family got ranches all in Texas--Colorado and all through the country. Chapman family was wealthy. Of course, now the depression hit and just about to wipe Mr. Chapman out, not telling ~~but~~ (not clear). Oh what, had (word not clear) out. Well, of course, Chapman had the money and he took it over and saved it. And then, of course, he kept it in the family. But, I guess, he made a lot of money out of it. Then Chapman he died.

MORE ABOUT BERRYHILL FAMILY

(Besides the Montgomery's and the Taylor's and--who were some of the other people that helped settle this area through here?)

Area.

(The old families.)

You got the Ruckers?

(Yeah, I got the Ruckers.)

Right in here?

(Yeah.)
