

Oh yes.

(All up and down that bottom.)

This was more brush country here, yeah. (Unintelligible.) Cause it don't take very long to grow if you --

(No if you don't keep it controlled grass will take over. Like it has now.)

(Words not clear.)

(How did Pheasant Hill get its name, you ever hear Mr. Chamberlain?)

Well I surmised it was because so many pheasants, I thought maybe named that.

(Well it could have been. Yeah that would sound reasonable.)

That's the only thing I could figure out. There was some pheasants here at one time, there was wild pigeons too.

(Well, wild pigeons.)

Yeah. Lots of wild pigeons.

(I never did see a wild pigeon.)

There used to be lots of 'em. They would roost on branches of trees and so many that they broke the limbs off.

(I guess at one time there was a lot of folks that lived on Cabin Creek up in there?)

Yes, there were lots of them.

(There must have been a lot of people.)

Oh there was a lot of Indians live in there.

(I guess they had some good times up at that church and the school house.)

Yeah, yeah they did.

(That was the old days when they'd have box suppers and pie suppers up there.)

(Unintelligible.)

(Christmas program, I bet.)
