

Cook. He's a scout master like. He asked me to help him one time. I couldn't very well do that cause I was teaching different things. Different classes. He's just teaching boy scouts. Course what he did learn he learned from me and my cousin there, Bill Architah. We raised up with Mr. Cook. Went to school with him. He try to teach the boy scouts the Indian ways, Indian songs. He try to ask me to teach some of those scouts Indian songs. I said there's six different tribes in this area. Well, there's 34 ain't there in Oklahoma. Yeah, there's 34 different tribes. That's according to Dr. Bittle. Therefore, I couldn't help him because I don't know what he's ..some of those boy scouts are from Eastern Oklahoma, some from southeast, northeast, maybe northwest. Therefore, their version what they been told is different.

(Were you ever in the boy scouts Ray?)

No.

(Did they have any clubs like that when you..)

Oh yeah. The rabbit clan, we call it. That's the way..the boy scouts.

You could stop right over there at that hill right there.

CEDAR:

(Stop right here?)

Yeah, little farther. Just a little farther. Right in there. Closer here. I don't walk too well. I don't know about that. See that (cedar) tree way down there? That's one but we can get it here too. Or up there.

(It would be easier to get that one up there.)

In the sand country they're same thing only they're more..but here it's very seldom cause the birds and varmints here they don't give them a chance to get ripe. (cedar berries). They'll eat them before they get ripe.
