

(uh, huh.)

I see. I see said the blind man. Fragrance. Sometime, just take a little pinch of it (cedar). Burn it. That's supposed to drive the spirits away. Or supposed to bring..refreshen your mind.

(Burn it?)

You get a mental strain, sometimes you get a headache, uh, before you get to that. (Mountain cedar.) Relax your mind. That's what they use if for. The Indians. Especially those doctors, Indian doctors. They concentrate so much on sickness and ailments and uh, they get where they get mental strain, they put that on. Get feathers and when that smoke is gone it takes that thought along with it and everything. That's the object. You use that mountain cedar. Comes out of rocks. So you remember that when you use that. Cause it's a secret. Like I told them other two students, it's just for yourself. Course you want to pass it on, but don't pass it on until you get some benefit out of it. It'll take time. It won't take a year. Sometime when you get the time you can use it. Sometime it works sometime it won't. Just like penecillin. Some people are immune to it. It's a good medicine but same way with that. It'll work for some people, but some it won't. That's that. That cedar, but they use that in that ceremony. Especially in peyote meetings. Before they pray or after they pray. They use it either way before or after. That's according to how a man wants to conduct meetings. I don't no if you could transplant them or not. I never did try it.

(What's the name of that?)

Soapweed. (Yucca) You know lava soap?

(Yeah)

They make that out of that.
