

(Um-huh.)

Well, I use to hear a lot but I've forgotten a whole lot. If Indian is going tell a tale he always put a rabbit in it. He told about a rabbit having a sick baby rabbit. He went out to find a doctor and found a buzzard on a tree and asked him if he could doctor and he said he could, so when they got there, buzzard told the rabbit he should put him in another room to himself, and for no one to come in till he got through doctoring him. So the big rabbit waited. He heard a cry from in there and asked what's happening-- buzzard said "I'm treating him." Baby rabbit quit crying and later buzzard came out. He said, "Well, I've doctor him." And went off and big rabbit went in and found only bones. Buzzard ate him up. And not lots of Indians get sick something like cancer eating them up and nothing can be done. We're losing lots of Indians. Lots of different sickness now. If we had hospital (Indian) close around here it would be good, If we Indians get real sick, it could be too late about time we get them to hospital far away.

(Yes it would be good if we had hospital close around here. Do you believe in Indian doctors?)

OPINIONS ON YOUNG PEOPLE

Yes I do. I use to use it and it helped and I believe in it. But these young people don't use them much.. Last night me and my son had argument. He wanted to borrow my car and I told him if he wrecked it far away, I couldn't get it and he got to saying we were too superstitious. He didn't believe in it and that we were old fashioned. I told him to listen and I told him if he obey us parents he'd be better off.

(Yes, those medicines were good.)

Yes I know it helped me and I believe in it.

(Just in your opinion what do you think is wrong with kids coming up like that? - What do you think is doing it?).