

(No, they had a stage stop there.)

Well, at Fort Gibson and Tahlequah, I guess. That's the only one I knowed anything about. I don't know if they had one between Fort Gibson and Muskogee or not, I mean, Tahlequah. But it come this side of my house. Old man Cook told me one time that that was the old stage line that went through there.

(There been a trading post or store in here or something, for a long time then, I guess.)

Yeah, yeah, there's a mound right there.

SCHOOLS - CHURCHES - OTHER BUILDINGS

(Yeah, there's one there. You gonna show me where the old Perkins school used to be.)

Yeah, I'll show you where that is. It's --

(Now, did they ever have a church here too?)

-- Church? No, they never did have a church. They tried to get one established here, but they never did do it. It's a -- since they abandoned the school, seem like everybody lost interest in it.

(That's right. Now, what was the rock building here in Perkins?)

That's over there. I don't know who built that.

(That was a store, I guess, at one time.)

I imagine it was.

(Yeah, and which building you say was the old school?)

That's right across over there beside that --

(Yeah, right on up.)

Right there beside -- over that stone building there. That's the top of a house there. It's a new house. Can you get by?

(Well, he's getting ready to move, I think.)
