

Oh, yeah.

(Well, what is it, four different ranches lost -- had cattle stolen here recently too, didn't they?)

Yeah, yeah.

(Hard to believe, isn't it?)

Yes, it is. Well, you take a man in a pickup, he can jump out here and get a couple of yearlings and be four--five hundred miles away in a short time.

(Oh, yes. Was there cattle rustling a long time in this country, too?)

Not so much as it is now because they had no way of getting away with it like they have now.

MORE SCHOOLS - BURIAL PLACES

(Yeah. Now, what school is this?)

That was Manard School.

(Manard School.)

Uh-huh.

(It's gone by the way too. Like all these other country schools are closed.) (Interruption.)

I don't think they had a school there. (words not clear) you know, they steal.

(Well, yeah, I guess so. In those old days, you rather have a horse than a cow.)

Yeah. -- moving. I've heard my dad talk about them blocking the horses, you know. Locking them with a chain. Now, where was that place? (Static on tape) --lost the -- in fact, it was Indian Territory days, you know, Territory days, and they just--there was no communication whatever. They just --

(Now, what was your grandfather's name?)
