

Budd, she is Jane Budd.

(Jane Budd, I know her.)

You do? Well, she was an Archer.

(I'm going to see her because I spoke to that Cherokee women's club the other day, and she was in attendance there, but I didn't know that she was an Archer, but I know her.)

Yeah, she was, a lot of Archer, a lot old lady, but she was (not clear) so much. She was so good and so nice when I was a kid going to school. She was among the first of county superintendent. And, that was back in the-- she ought to come up with a lot of information, even more than I am able to.

OLD TEXAS TRAIL CROSSES PRYOR CREEK

(Now in relation to the location, that cemetery, where did that Texas trail cross the creek there?)

A little northwest of that cemetery. Do you know where the corner of that where you going down 69A and then this corner you cross towards, well turns up to Archer school house. Well, just about that little old (word not clear) just about bisecting that corner. Then, went right on cross down there across that gravel pit, that's where that gravel pits at now. And you can go down in here and you will find the old trail yet.

(Well, I want to go down in there, and get maybe a picture if there's anything I can find at all to identify it.)

You cross Chouteau creek, west of Chouteau about what we call Rocky Ford.

(West of Chouteau?)

Uh, huh, west and northwest, about what we call Rocky Ford.

ARCHER FORD NEAR PRYOR

(Well, I'm glad to know that too. Now, you said that at one time there
