

get to go down there when that doing. Cause I don't know anything about it.

(Did they open the bundles in the old days?)

I don't know what they did about it. They did, Apache John, but this one one I got I don't think they never did open it. Well, this medicine that I got now, my mother told me a long time ago, Old Lady Josh, she unbundled it and she rebundled it. And since, it been bundled that away since.

Never been untied.

(How did that one come into your family, the one you got?)

A man they called Steven, they call him. He was one time over at Howard Sontays he was in dad-in-law at one time and he had that bundle. I don't know that bundle came from way back. Somewhere, I don't know where. But anyway, he had that bundle. He come to our place down there, where we lived between Ft. Cobb and Carnegie. He got sick down there. He had that bundle. Him and his wife, they kind of separated, Stephen. All I know is Stephen, and he come our place, he got sick. I had doctors for him there I don't know what kind of sickness he had but anyway he was there at our place, I don't know how long he was sick. Finally he passed away. And when he passed away well this bundle just fell in my mother's hands. And the people whose supposed to own it, she's trying to give it back.

(who was supposed to own it?)

Well, his wife, she knows about it. Stephen's wife, she knows about it. She was living then. She told her to go ahead and give this bundle back because it don't belong to me and I don't know anything about it. She don't want it. Afraid of it.

(This is Stephens wife that didn't want it right?)

Yea, So come along, come along come along, finally that Lena Archilta..

she's dead now..well that's where they supposed to..that medicine supposed
